Intermodal groupage and consolidation centres

The first trimestre of 2017 has already gone by. The Escola started out with big challenges this year. In this article, our Director tackles a highly topical subject in the logistics industry. Groupage and consolidation centres are the topic of the newest training course organised by the Escola, starting on April 24th. Find out the significant role of groupage in nowadays supply chains.

“European export trade is growing fast thanks to competitive international transport services, among other factors. To favour export operations, shippers need operators to offer efficient, eco-friendly and competitive services to a wide range of destinations around the world. This means that operators need to get organised in firm, well-structured and trustworthy networks present throughout the process, from departure to arrival. In practice, it is necessary to count on organisations and people able to...”
